

prof. Wojciech Hanke, Ph.D, MD

a national consultant in the field of environmental health; deputy director for Scientific Affairs in The Nofer Institute of Occupational Medicine in Lodz and the head of the Department of Environmental Epidemiology. Responsible for the WHO National Contact Point in the field of environmental health.

Areas of interests:

- 1) Research on environmental and occupational hazards of male fertility and pregnancy. Socio-demographic procreation threats.
- 2) Epidemiological studies on the impact of environmental factors on children's health. Polish Mother and Child Cohort (REPRO-PL) <http://repropl.com/>
- 3) Epidemiological aspects of occupational diseases and work-related civilization diseases prevention as part of prophylactic examinations performed by occupational health physicians (population of 12.5 million workers; 4.5 million examinations annually)
- 4) Epidemiological studies evaluating the impact of factors present in working environment on workers' health. Supervision over the Central Register of Occupational Diseases in the Nofer Institute of Occupational Medicine in Lodz.